During childhood I read a lot. The book "Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone" written by J.K. Rowling was one of my favorites. It was written for children and felt like a fairytale. It's a story about a boy who finds out he is a wizard. The protagonist whose name is Harry Potter, lives with his strict aunt until he gets a letter, in which he's invited to study at magic school and learn about magic. He decides to go there and lots of changes in his life begin to happen. The boy learns a lot about magic, life and friendship. He is truly a strong and determined person with a will to enjoy his life.

I think this book really raised me as a kid. It's truly a piece of art for me, I appreciate its <sup>contemporary</sup> legacy and contemporary impact it made on me. I think it will be interesting for the younger generation because of its wonderful plot, friendly and magical atmosphere and interesting characters. For me, this book taught me to believe in myself and to appreciate my friends. This book brings me comfort and really has an appeal for me.
